Question: 1 of 14

QID: 11079

Marks: 15

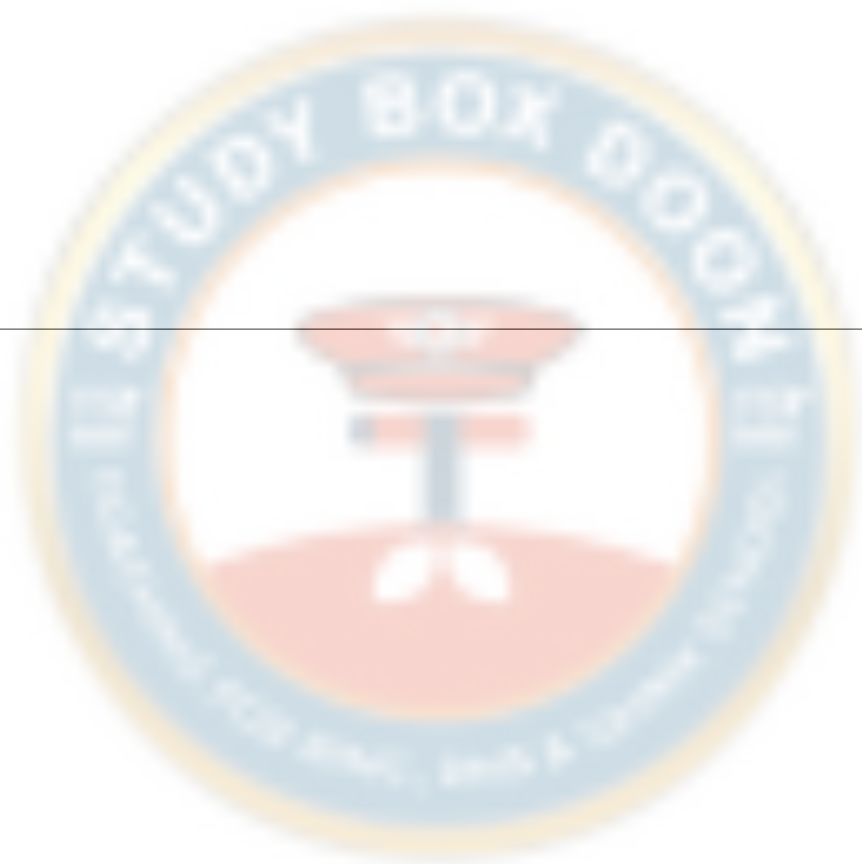

Read the passage and answer the questions that follow: [15 Marks]

It does not sound appropriate for anybody to use the profession they belong to as the most important thing on earth to define who they are or what they are. Of course, one must be proud of one's profession, but to consider a particular profession to be head and shoulders above others is definitely preposterous. Indeed every profession is equally important; however, in the hierarchy of time and space that attaches more importance to a particular profession. For instance, when we think of giving our children the best education possible, teachers are very important; when we fall ill, doctors are very important; when we think of the security of the nation, people in uniform – the army, navy, air force, para-military and police – are very important; and when we watched the football world cup, many of us wished we were footballers. It is not the profession that makes it great; it is we that make the profession great. If a patient dies in a hospital due to the carelessness of a doctor, the society won't feel great about his/her profession; or, if a scientist starts about developing a deadly biological weapon, the society won't consider his profession might then be seen by the world as virtuous. On the contrary, when we think of Anand Kumar's Super 30 programme that has sent many underprivileged students to IITs, the profession of teaching indeed becomes great. It is the same when we think of how Captain Vikram Batra and Captain Manoj Kumar Pandey laid down their lives for the country. We have the highest respect for those uniformed men and women. It is the same with scientists who became a pride of the people like Kapil Dev, Sunil Gavaskar, Sachin Tendulkar, Mahendra Singh Dhoni etc. who made us proud during the matches, who made the profession sportsmen look good. When we recall the services of doctors during the pandemic, the world bows down to them. This is how we make our profession look great. Young boys and girls who have stars in their eyes and big dreams in their heads must know that they should have big dreams and they must work hard to achieve those dreams. They should also remember that no profession is big or small, and they must give their best to their chosen profession and work hard to make their profession look good.

Questions:

- (a) How do we make our profession great? Give an example. [02]
- (b) Can any profession be considered the best? Why? [03]
- (c) What advice is being given to the young students by the passage? [02]
